1. The referenced memorandum from the President (Reference A) approved the 1985 Intelligence Capabilities Study, in which a representative from the Office of Naval Intelligence participated last year, as a basis of Intelligence Community long-range planning. Accordingly, the Director of Central Intelligence has now asked that we proceed to the next step in the Community's strategic planning process, an update of the Capabilities Study plus an in-depth examination of selected important factors, both within and outside the Community, which will impact on our ability to assure an adequate uninterrupted flow of intelligence well into the next decade (Reference B).
